MURAL

Biography

Dominic Laporte is an accomplished muralist and illustrator based in Canada. His artistry seamlessly melds traditional painting techniques with mixed-media approaches, primarily focusing on themes rooted in the natural world. His recent gallery work delves into the intricate symbiotic relationships found in nature, weaving these concepts into profound narratives. His goal is to bring these paintings to life on large scale walls. Over the past decade, Dominic has taken his mural practice to an international stage, crafting a unique style that has become a defining element of Canada's urban landscapes.

Inspired by his immediate surroundings, Dominic's murals serve as a means to connect with audiences who may not typically engage with traditional art galleries. His portfolio includes large-scale commissions for prestigious institutions such as Canada's Museum of Science & Technology, Live Nation Canada, Street Art Toronto, The Royal Canadian Navy, Bank of Montreal, Adidas, The Canadian Medical Association, and the City of Ottawa Light Rail Transit, among others. He has also been a featured artist at various mural festivals worldwide, such as Noisy Waters and Planting Seeds in the United States, SISAF in Romania, and numerous Canadian festivals, including the Squamish Mural Walk, Nelson International Mural Festival, and Halifax International Mural Festival.

Dominic's dedication to community-driven and accessible art aligns seamlessly with his background in traditional painting. His artwork and mural installations have graced cities throughout North America, Europe, and Asia. Together with his partner, Anaïs Labrèque, Dominic is a co-founder of DRIFT, a mural production and public art company based in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. At DRIFT Mural Co., their mission is to enhance communities and celebrate local identities through transformative public art initiatives.

Recent developments in Dominic's work signify both stylistic evolution and a fresh exploration of thematic concerns. After years of captivation with portraiture's capacity to depict the richness of human emotions and experiences, his latest creations shift focus towards natural environments and the intricate, symbiotic bonds (real and imagined) between species and ecosystems. He delves into the concept of mutual dependency among species despite their diverse needs and inherent gaps in understanding.

Dominic's unique artistic style amalgamates realism and surrealism, urging viewers to contemplate their relationship with and responsibility toward other species in our shared world.
